

The Parent-Teacher associations of Hallow'een are jointly sponsoring a Hallow'een Carnival for grade students at the Fair park Coliseum Tuesday night — which, being the last day of October, has historic significance for small fry.

I suspect the PTAs of playing it smart. What they are going to do is prove to the youngsters that you can have more fun at a carnival than wandering around town marking up store windows and ringing residential bells.

But I feel for the PTAs. They have got themselves a job. They are swapping off city-wide confusion for organized chaos. However, the Coliseum can take it.

President Truman let it be known in the dispatches out of Washington yesterday that he may call congress back into session before its scheduled date, November 27.

The president has several things in mind — such things as tighter controls on inflation and an excess profits tax.

I agree with the president and the Democratic party philosophy that the most effective way to control wartime inflation is to levy such high taxes that people are discouraged from feeling rich. Furthermore, higher taxes tend to balance the budget — making us pay for much of the war in this generation.

This is the theory and intent of wartime taxation. But Mr. Truman apparently can't help surrounding himself with men who are primarily interested in (1) politics, or (2) changing the basic structure of the American business system. The proposed excess profits tax is a case in point.

Invariably the Washington administration whips up an excess profits tax not primarily to help pay for a war but to penalize certain divisions of American business — usually the big corporations. And there is no end to what radical advisers propose, all under the guise of a war emergency.

I note that one of the proposals now on the planning board in Washington is to force national manufacturing companies from increasing their advertising appropriations on the ground that to do so would inflate expense and cut down the amount of the government's tax "take."

But who is the Washington government to decide which divisions of American business shall be rewarded and which penalized? As a small-paper publisher I have no expectation whatever of participating in any key-city wartime advertising that U. S. Steel or the other big fellows may propose. But I resent the attempt of our supposedly representative government in Washington to penalize the press — and if I suspect it is for political reasons I am forthright enough to say so.

It is a picaresque political gesture by men of small stature. They have no confidence in either the people's intelligence or their judgment.

Otherwise the administration would merely levy additional taxes across the board. For the people know by this time — with two experiences in this generation — that war costs money and the cheapest way to pay for it is to let everyone have a piece of the check. Whenever you try to pile it on the big fellows alone you merely increase the cost to the little ones — more than is necessary. For the big fellows, like everyone else, operate on a percentage basis. The higher the cost the higher the price also — and so the wartime cost that comes down to us in manufactured articles includes not only the excess profits tax but the merchandising markup on same.

U. S. Supports Move to Let Up on Franco

Lake Success, Oct. 27 — (AP)—The United States threw its support today behind a move to soften United Nations restrictions against Franco Spain.

An American source said the U. S. will vote for a resolution, scheduled to be introduced in the United Nations special political committee, to revoke the ban on sending ambassadors to Madrid and to give Spain permission to join organizations affiliated with the U. N.

The resolution does not permit full Spanish membership in the United Nations nor does it repeal an earlier formal condemnation of the Franco regime.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson forecast the new American policy in a letter to Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex.), chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, last spring.

He said that if the U. N. resolution did not constitute outright approval of Franco, the U. S. would have no objection to repealing the ban on ambassadors.

Britain, whose Labor government has been one of the most outspoken critics of Franco, let it be known it would not oppose the resolution and would abstain in the voting.

With the almost solid support of the Latin American and Arab countries, the resolution seemed assured of the votes needed to beat down Soviet bloc opposition.

It is sponsored by Bolivia, Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, The Philippines and Peru.

All of those countries have cultural and emotional ties with Spain, which originally colonized them.

The U. S. position was reported to be that, since the original resolution did not succeed in its aim of replacing the Franco government by moral persuasion, it was foolish to keep it any longer.

While the special political committee debates Spain, Russia's Andrei V. Vishinsky is expected to give the 60-nation political committee a vigorous rebuttal to Western attacks on his "peace plan."

Terms Guided Missiles War as Unlikely

Detroit, Oct. 27 — (AP)—On account of the "human element," there will never be a real push-button war, says K. T. Keller.

Chrysler Corp's president, newly named director of America's guided missile program, told interviewers yesterday: "You just can't get along without the human element."

Of his government assignment Keller said "the military importance of guided missiles is fully appreciated" by the U. S. and it is felt that the program "should be expedited."

Keller, who is 64, will retain his Chrysler post. However, Chrysler's board of directors is permitting him to give as much time as he sees fit to the government work.

Red China Again Accuses U. S. of Violations

London, Oct. 27 — (AP)—Communist China has again accused American Military planes operating in Korea of violating her sovereignty. The Peiping radio Saidoelgn Minister Chou En-Lai charged that U. S. aircraft bombed and strafed the Manchurian province of Liaoning between Oct. 13 and Oct. 25.

The broadcast last night said the Red leader demanded in a cable to U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie that the security council "take measures" to stop the alleged activity.

Twice before Chou accused the U. S. air force of bombing Manchurian towns near the Korean border. The U. S. proposed that the security council name a commission to investigate the alleged bombing, but Russia vetoed the suggestion.

India Alarmed Over Invasion of Tibet

New Delhi, India, Oct. 27 — (UP)—The influential newspaper Statesman reported today that Chinese Communists had driven 150 miles into Tibet as Premier Jawaharlal Nehru called an emergency cabinet meeting to consider possible action.

The Statesman quoted "reliable sources" and pin-pointed the Chinese troops 350 miles east of Lhasa in territory stretching some 500 miles from Lhasa to the Yangtze river.

The 500-mile strip is the disputed territory claimed by both the Tibetans and the Chinese Communists.

The Indian government, which has sided with the Communist regime in Peiping on many occasions, asked its ambassador there to convey his "surprise and regret" that the Reds had decided to march on the ancient domain.

"The urgency of the cabinet meeting, the second in two days, was pointed up when Nehru ordered C. Rajagopalachari, former governor-general of India and now a minister without portfolio, to take a short holiday at Madras and return here."

The Indian external affairs ministry said the government had "read with concern reports that the Chinese Communist government have ordered units of the Chinese army to advance into Tibet."

"They have asked their ambassador in Peiping to convey to the Chinese government their surprise and regret at this development. They also communicated their views to the Chinese embassy in New Delhi."

The Communist New China News agency announced Wednesday Red army units had been ordered to advance into Tibet to "free 3,000,000 Tibetans from imperialist aggression."

Taegliche Rundschau, Soviet army newspaper in Berlin, said yesterday that Chinese Communist forces actually crossed into Tibet early Tuesday.

India was shocked by the report of invasion. The government has been trying to arrange peaceful negotiations between Tibetan and Chinese Communist representatives.

Says GOP Should Have Voice in State

Hamburg, Oct. 27 — (AP)—Jefferson W. Speck, Arkansas Republican candidate for governor, reiterated today that the Republican party should have a voice in Arkansas politics.

Speck said in a speech here today he is convinced that "both political parties should be represented on the public service commission." The GOP candidate had reference to a hearing now up before the PSC on Southwestern Bell Telephone company's request for a $4,620,000 annual rate increase.

Speck added: "I believe that if a Republican were placed on the commission, the people of Arkansas would be better represented and better informed as to what's going on in the public utility field."

"For instance, I live on a party telephone line which is out of order about 30 per cent of the time and under the old rates it costs me 45 cents to call six miles. I can see no justification for an increase of rates. But as long as the commission is 100 per cent controlled by the McMath crowd, it will be an easy job for them to make secret agreements which can only work to the disadvantage of the public."

The Frenchman's Bayou (Mississippi county) World War II veteran speaks later today in Crossett (Ashley county) and Strong (Union county).

Dwarf type fruit trees, as a rule, produce just as well as their regular size counterparts.

Plane Believed Crashed in Louisiana Lake

New Orleans, Oct. 27 — (AP)—The air force reported a twin-engine navigation training plane with four men aboard "is presumed to have crashed" into Lake Pontchartrain of the northern edge of New Orleans in heavy pre-dawn fog today.

The plane took off at 2 a. m. (CST) for Craig air force base at Selma, Ala.

Lt. John Walker, public information officer of Keesler Air force base at Biloxi, Miss., said "one landing light has been found and the plane is presumed to have crashed."

Search for the remainder of the plane was hampered by the dense shroud of fog, the heaviest in New Orleans this year.

First reports from civilian sources placed eight men aboard the plane, but Lt. Nick Stam, also of the Keesler AFB information office, said Maj. James Percy at Scott AFB, Belleville, Ill., home base of the plane, said there were only four.

Maj. Percy said they were a lieutenant colonel, a major serving as pilot and two others whose rank was not known.

Their identities were withheld pending notification of the next of kin.

Lt. Walker said the plane arrived here last night from Craig field at Selma and took off this morning for a return flight to Selma.

Lt. Comdr. John Parsons of the naval air station at New Orleans said three sentries reported hearing the plane "smack the water" at 2:05 a. m. (CST).

Lt. Walker flew here from Biloxi, 80 miles to the east, in a coast guard PBV amphibious patrol plane sent to search for the crashed plane. The air search was halted, however, because of the fog.

As soon as the fog clears, he said, civil air patrol planes will be sent up to continue the search.

At New Orleans airport, where the plane was cleared by the air national guard for a takeoff, attendants said the twin engines were heard to cut off "as quick as you can snap your fingers" after the plane was airborne.

"Moments later, they said, they heard "a splash."

SS of 2 Nations Called in About Missing Scientist

London, Oct. 27 — (AP)—Britain called in American and French secret service men for conferences today on the search for Prof. Bruno Pontecorvo, missing atom scientist whose knowledge could aid an enemy power.

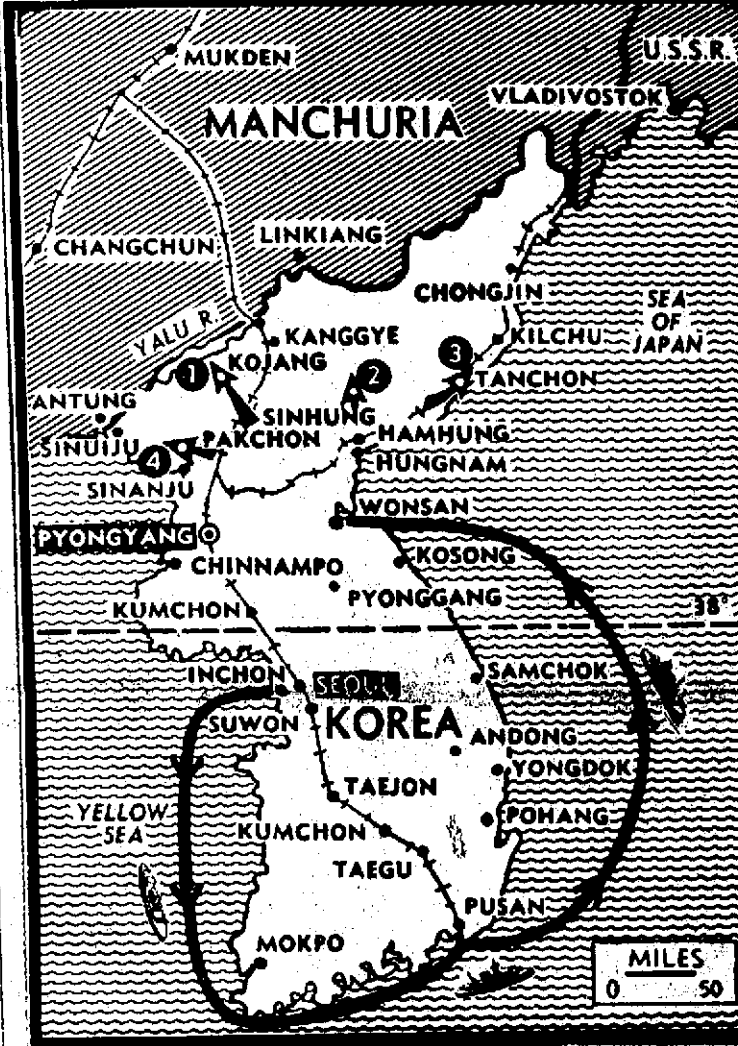

G-Men of the three nations met in a locked room at Harwell, Britain's atom center 60 miles west of London, to discuss the case of Pontecorvo, who vanished with his wife and three children in Finland on Sept. 2.

The talks were believed to center around these points: Extent and nature of the secret information Pontecorvo could have carried out of the country.

A check-up of his movements and the people he knows both in Britain and across the continent.

Methods of finding him. Pontecorvo, Italian born, became a naturalized Briton a year ago. He left England last July with his family to take a motoring vacation in Europe. He disappeared after being seen last in Helsinki, where he turned up unexpectedly.

Most British newspapers and government officials suspect he is in Russia. This has not been confirmed. Pontecorvo held a position of trust and responsibility in Harwell. He also had worked at main American and Canadian atomic stations.

MARINES LAND AT WONSAN — South Korean units raced through Kojan (1) only 18 miles from Manchurian border with 20,000 Marines spearheading landing at Wonsan, for the Allied knockout drive. Marines were moved by sea from Inchon to the east coast port, picking up the U. S. 7th Division en-route at Pusan. Marines were sent to back up South Korean forces around Sinju (2) while the 7th Division began moving northeast to support the ROK's north of Tanchon (3). On the northwest coast, British and Yank forces overcame slight enemy resistance at Pakchon and were only 67 miles from Sinuiju (4), target city on the Yalu River Frontier. (NEA Telephoto)

Correspondents Club in the Heart of Tokyo Represented Home to the Weary Writers

By BILL ROSS (For Hal Boyle)

Tokyo — (AP)—Most newsmen who covered the Korean war gave their overseas address as No. 1 Shinbun Alley. This the location of the Tokyo correspondent's club.

During the past four months the traffic that flowed in and out of the five story building at times rivaled that of a state's highway caught in the crush of an American Legion convention.

It isn't a pretentious club and definitely was not intended to accommodate the nearly 300 correspondents who called it home while the fighting raged in Korea.

But in chit and club happy Tokyo — where everybody has to have a club to buy food and drink and belong to a club to buy a club — it was the only place reporters really felt at home.

Rarely did newsmen have an opportunity to spend more than a couple of days at the club. They would fly in from Korea after two weeks or more at the front to take a quick breather and to write copy in a measure of comfort.

The correspondents slept dormitory-style except for a dozen or so "old apian hands" who were permanent club residents.

As Jimmy Cannon of the New York Post once put it during a trip "home" from the then-raging Taegu sector: "This is the only chance a guy has to act as a civilized reporter should act."

The tiny bar operated virtually around the clock until weary correspondents — back from Korea for an honest to goodness rest — complained to the executive committee about the post midnight noise.

A heavy-eyed investigating committee of three groped down the stairs to the bar and found 43 persons — non-members of club and all non-reporters.

The midnight bar curfew was imposed the next day. But correspondents who liked a late night cap were unhappy — especially at the military brass who had made all the noise.

Not the least of the reasons that newsmen were pleased with the club was the Japanese staff. Chances are they didn't see each reporter more than two dozen times during the American's entire stay in Tokyo. But after once hearing the correspondent's names the Japanese remembered them.

Sometimes the Japanese had trouble understanding American accents and there was a corresponding foul-up now and then in food and drink orders. But generally the service was good.

The club's lounge, furnished with comfortable but battered daven ports and easy chairs, was the scene of some get-togethers that Shinbun Alley probably never will forget. But generally it was a surprisingly quiet place with the library almost as popular as the bar.

After the first few weeks of the war, you could almost always see a correspondent with an arm or leg in a cast resting in the lounge. There were others battered and beaten — reminders of the toll the Korean war inflicted on newsmen who covered it.

But perhaps the grimmest memories were stirred by the mail boxes, with ever increasing stacks of letters and packages, addressed to those correspondents who would never return to the club — to those who lost their lives on the

Opposition Is Light as Allies Push Forward

Bodies of 29 Americans Discovered

Unsan, North Korea, Oct. 27 — (UP)—The bodies of 29 American war prisoners shot, bayoneted and burned by the North Koreans Reds have been found beside the wreck of a long-sought prison train, a U. S. medical officer said today.

About 180 American prisoners were on the train when it ran off the rails last Monday near the small Chongchon river town of Kujang, 64 miles north of Pyongyang.

Communist guards took 30 prisoners who were too badly wounded or ill to walk, lined them up along the tracks and methodically shot and bayoneted them. Only one man survived — Sherman L. Jones of Lubbock, Tex.

Then the Reds set fire to the wrecked train and marched off the remaining 150 prisoners to the Manchurian border.

However, two escaped and told the grim story of the massacre to Lt. Worsham B. Roberson of San Antonio, Texas.

The two escaped men, Walter B. Whitcomb of Buffalo, N. Y., and Elmer N. Slater of an unidentified town in Illinois, said that another prison train which ran just ahead of the derailed section, was carrying other American prisoners toward Manchuria.

Among the prisoners on this first section, they said, was at least one high-ranking American officer.

The two sections were believed part of the same train from which Communist guards removed nearly 100 other feeble American prisoners at Sunan, 12 miles north of Pyongyang, a week ago today, and machine-gunned them. Some of the killed, only 20 survived that massacre.

The two survivors of the latest atrocity were found by the U. S. air force north toward the Manchurian border in search of the missing train.

Roberson said cars of the wrecked train still were burning when the tank forces reached Kujang. The bodies of the 29 slaughtered prisoners were found heaped nearby, some of them charred from the fire.

Sixty yards from the wreckage, Roberson said, he found Jones, the sole survivor.

But reports that Chinese were fighting on the North Korean side persisted.

One Chinese Red prisoner quoted as saying two divisions of Chinese troops had crossed the Yalu River from Manchuria into the fight.

Boyle said all sources he with expressed disbelief at fighting segments of the Communist army.

A U. S. fifth air force spokesman said no movement of Red troops from the north had been reported since the fall of Pusan.

"The movement of the day," he said, "was the Manchurian — not from the north."

Little Rock, Oct. 27 — (AP)—Arkansas agricultural experts apparently want to go slow on any huge increase in Arkansas cotton production next year.

That despite the fact that federal authorities have cancelled a 1951 growing quotas, asked for increased production and set a tentative national goal of 16,000,000 bales for 1951.

The Arkansans — who set forth their views at a meeting here yesterday — fear a big jump in cotton growing might upset years of effort toward a balanced land use program, and away from the "one crop" system.

Yesterday's meeting was a conference of the state agricultural development committee, appointed some months ago by Governor McMath with University of Arkansas president Lewis Webster Jones as chairman.

No recommendation was made for a cotton production goal for Arkansas.

Joe Hardin, Grady, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau federation, suggested that any increase should come from the rich cotton producing land of East Arkansas rather than from marginal hill land.

Three Jailed, Two Liquor Stills Seized by Officers

State and Federal officers arrested three men and seized two moonshine liquor stills during the past week.

Leonard Patten and Floyd Huntley, negroes, were arrested Sunday at a 50-gallon still 5 miles south of Washington. They were placed under $500 bond each in federal court at Texarkana Monday.

Early today Ned Brunson, negro, was arrested at another 50-gallon still 5 miles south of Fulton on Red River. Officers also seized a gallon of liquor and a

A tiny pump organ is the correspondence club's monument to its own Korean war dead. The instrument was "liberated" at Tseng by Charles Rosengans, International News Photos cameraman who was killed six weeks ago in a plane crash.

Club members and a cooperative air force flew the organ back to Tokyo. It stands in the center of the pump and has "Rosie" name on it. A day doesn't go by that some sentimental guy doesn't finger out a tune or two.

The roster of active members drops day by day as the correspondents return to the states in view of the nearly over Korean war. Others are heading elsewhere toward possible new wars or where other men are fighting in "police action."

But wherever they go, they'll remember the Tokyo Correspondents club. After all, it was "home" to most of them for a memorable period.

DOROTHY DIX Shirking Fathers

put up with this much longer.

Answer: If a girl prefers going to the neighborhood movies with the family to stepping out with you it doesn't look as if she cared very much for your society. Most girls don't consider an outing with father and mother and little sister and brother a very hilarious experience.

No doubt this girl who prefers dull times with her family to good times with boys is an admirable character. But, take it from me, son, in reality this family obsession is about the worst fault a girl can have from a marrying point of view. For she is always more married to her family than she is to her husband. The family always comes first with her.

Many a man can never get ahead in the world, no matter how hard he works, because his wife spends his earnings on her family. Many a man has to give up the opportunity that would have made his fortune because his wife refuses to move away from Mother and the girls. Many a man's whole life is ruled by what Mother says and what Father thinks, and is dominated in every way not only by his wife but also by his wife's family. So, son, I'd think a long time before I would tie up with any girl who put her family before me.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am tired of hearing the mothers blamed for the way their children turn out. About the fathers' responsibility in rearing their children and fitting them to meet the bumps and hard knocks in life? It is during childhood that character is formed, and every boy needs a father who is a friend to whom he can go with his problems. There is no greater crime than that so many fathers bring children into the world and do not pay any more attention to them than if they were stray dogs. What do you think about this?

A READER

Answer: I fully agree with you. In our curious American school structure there is nothing so strange and inexplicable as that our men should be at once the best and worst fathers in the world. The best in the sense that they are most anxious to give material things to their children, and the worst in the sense that they so seldom give them any personal attention.

Might As Well Be Fatherless

It is hardly too much to say that except for the purpose of legitimacy the average American child might as well be fatherless as to have the kind of father he possesses. Except for supporting his child the average man washes his hands of all responsibility for them. He doesn't play with them as babies. He doesn't take the trouble or the time to get acquainted with them. He hasn't any more idea of what his own little Johnny and Janey are thinking and doing and what kind of minds they have and what their desires and aspirations are than he has any other youngsters in the neighborhood.

All his contacts with his children are financial and these are mainly negotiated through their mother, who tells father that Sam wants a bicycle or Mary wants a pink dress. There are plenty of fathers and children who never in their whole lives have a single free heart-to-heart talk. Instead both of them are embarrassed to death when they are left alone together, and one or the other of them makes a sneak as soon as possible.

It is because fathers have so little to do in rearing the children that we blame the mothers for the way the children turn out. But that does not exonerate the fathers for having failed in their obligation, for children need two parents not one. No matter how good a mother is nor how conscientious, if she tries to do her best by her children there is need for the father's influence, too.

Dear Miss Dix: I am going with a girl who has an apron string complex. When I ask for a date she goes into a consultation with the family to see if they are going any place that night. If they are going to stay home, I get a date. If they are going out, I don't. This girl is 21 years of age, but she has no more freedom than if she were a little child. Do you think it right for the family to feel that they have the first claim on all of her time and for me to run a bad second? I don't intend to Answer: Keep your mouth shut. Never tell him. For two reasons. One is because if you only look 28 that is all you really are. And, in the second place, because his idea that a woman ceases to be at 35 is silly and, anyway, the difference between your ages is negligible.

KILLED BY FREIGHT

Hoxie, Oct. 27 — (AP) — A Frisco freight train struck and killed Missouri Pacific freight Agent Lee Hutton, 60, here yesterday.

Hutton was standing on the Frisco tracks near the junction with the Missouri Pacific and apparently didn't notice the train's approach. Three daughters and four sons survive.

Legislature Is Acting Up Again

Little Rock, Oct. 27 — (AP) — The 1951 Arkansas legislature may make like one of its predecessors—but no session from the union is expected.

A proposed mock meeting of next year's assembly at the recently-restored old state capitol was approved yesterday by the Arkansas Commemorative commission.

The 1951-model legislature would wear clothes of a bygone day—no particular period was suggested—and carry on their deliberation in the chambers of the state's first capitol. There former legislatures met for many years and there on voted to cast Arkansas' lot with the confederacy.

The mock session was suggested to the commemorative commission, which supervises the old capitol, by Secretary of State C. G. Hall. The legislature will be invited to carry out the plan.

A reception by the governor and constitutional officers would follow the "special session."

Yesterday's meeting was to lay plans for operation of the building—which until its restoration had housed state agencies and patriotic societies—as a public shrine.

The commemorative commission voted to invite the Arkansas historical commission, now housed in the present capitol, to move its

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

By King Features Syndicate.

New York, Oct. 27 — The so-called Buchanan committee of congress, which investigated "lobbying," has threatened to send a man to prison for refusing to reveal the names of persons who bought copies of John T. Flynn's anti-communist political essay "The Road Ahead." Mr. Flynn has charged that this is an attempt by congress to harass those who bought the book and intimidate others who might want to. The Buchanan committee has issued a report, noting that some large pro-American, business firms have supported organized pro-American, pro-constitutional and anti-communist activities. It carefully and pointedly ignored an organization devoted to the Morgenthau plan which would eventually turn Germany over to the power of Soviet Russia. This organization is called the society for the prevention of World War III.

In her syndicated column released last May 31, Dorothy Thompson wrote "while investigations of sinister influences on American foreign policy are under way, it would be well to take up the activities of the society for the prevention of World War III. This organization, whose trustees include numbers of reputable people, has conducted a systematic campaign against any constructive peace with Germany. It supported the Morgenthau plan and vilified every person in public life who tried to warn that procedure along Morgenthau lines would encompass the ruin of Europe. The organization has been well heeled, for it has published expensive brochures."

It is also a secretive organization. Its monthly pamphlet entitled "Prevent World War III" for Aug. and Sept., 1946, contained letters to the "editor" but no editor was named anywhere in the paper and there was absolutely no identification of any member or backer of the society. Other numbers of the book, however, do give a changing list of individuals. At the current writing the board of directors and the advisory council have come out of the closet to list themselves on the inside of the front cover. They include, as well as those whom Dorothy Thompson gives the benefit of a doubt as "reputable people," a number of American-lasters and the normal overwhelming quota of voluptuous, non-combatant commandos of the "let's you and him fight a war" school of foreign policy.

There is a clue to the character of the society and to its religious bias in the Aug.-Sept. 1946 issue. This number describes the Brooklyn tablet as a "notorious publication." The tablet had published some thoughts put forth by Austin J. App, Ph. D., described as associate professor of English at the Catholic college of the Incarnate word, of San Antonio, Tex. The quotations from the writings of Doctor App are presented in the manner which Mr. Flynn exposed in his pamphlet "The Smear Terror."

The Brooklyn tablet is renowned as a bold exponent of the Catholic religion, American patriotism and moral virtue and as an enemy of communism. In describing this leading American Catholic paper as "notorious," the society's bulletin got in a lick which is indicative of its own attitude toward the foremost Catholic advocate.

Doctor App's writing which caused this explosion was a protest against the ravishment of German, Austrian and Hungarian women by the conquering armies. The society for the prevention of World War III in this number does not appear to deny the truth of Doctor App's charge nor even to deplore the crimes alleged.

There is significance also in the fact that, according to the bulletin, the Russians "are his favorite enemy." Dealing with these charges, the bulletin said: "Freedom of speech does not include the freedom to spread sedition — although many of our demagogues skate dangerously close to the line."

The society's own "line" occasionally may seem inconsistent with the Communist line. However, the anonymous powers who put out the issue of the bulletin thought it well high sedition of Doctor App to reveal enmity toward Soviet Russia. Prof. Harry Elmer Barnes, the

Homecoming Game Friday for Yerger

The Yerger Homecoming activities will get underway Friday afternoon with a parade through downtown Hope and a portion of the residential section.

Plans are being made to make this parade larger and better than last year's. All grades and school organizations are decorating cars and floats. The Washington High Band of Texarkana, Arkansas, at Hammons Stadium. This is expected to be a hard played game between these two rival teams with both fighting to better their conference standing.

At eight o'clock the Yerger Tigers will meet the 1940 Conference Championship team — Washington High Lions of Texarkana, Arkansas, at Hammons Stadium. This is expected to be a hard played game between these two rival teams with both fighting to better their conference standing.

Wednesday afternoon the Queen of Yerger High School was crowned in the Yerger Auditorium during a very colorful and impressive ceremony.

Page Andrew Nunn of the third grade, flower girls Norma Williams and Virginia Bishop, and the Queen of 1949 led the procession. Following were the Queen-elect of 1950, Willie Pearl Turntine, escorted by Co-captain Aaron McFadden, Princess and attendants were attired in beautiful gowns and carried large bouquets of gold chrysanthemums with blue and gold ribbons.

Willie Pearl Turntine was crowned by Co-captain Aaron McFadden and Princess Jodie Briggs was crowned by Co-captain Elroy Cleghorn following the procession. The Queen and her attendants were then entertained with a program of songs, music and stunts.

Crump Silent on Split at Memphis

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 26 — (AP) — The favorite guessing game here today was whether the open war between the mayor and his city commissioners foreshadows a new political lineup.

From the man who doesn't have to guess, Political Leader E. H. Crump, there's been nothing but loud silence.

The latest statement in the public spat from Mayor Watkins over last night: "Commissioner (Joe) Boyle will never dictate to me as to whom I will have in my office."

This was after a poll of the four city commissioners found them solidly against the mayor's order for a $100 a month pay boost for his acting administrative assistant.

Overton's slow boil over the rejection of the order by Finance Commissioner Boyle didn't become public until Tuesday, although the incident occurred over a month ago.

It happened while Overton was out of town. Boyle, as acting mayor, rejected the order, basing the action on letters from Overton, himself, warning against pay hikes in the various departments.

Boyle said 25-year-old Guy Bates, acting administrative assistant to Overton, was "just out of school... green as a gourd."

It is pretty hard for the rest of the commissioners to think of an inexperienced person obtaining a $100 a month raise.

Overton, in a statement to newsmen, said he could not "commit" to serve Memphis' "less" he could choose his own office force. A salary of $375 a month, Bates would certainly not be "excessive," he said.

A session to discuss salaries and budget matters was scheduled by the commission yesterday but Mayor Overton didn't attend because of the illness of his wife.

Malvern Doped to Win Over Bobcats

Tonight the Hope Bobcats will journey to Camden for a league contest with the powerful panthers and many local fans including the high school band will accompany the team.

Camden is a heavy favorite but the Bobcats have improved with each game and barring a few fumbles could make a game of it.

Last night a Hammons Stadium the Junior Bobkittens celebrated homecoming with a rousing 28 to 12 victory over the Prescott Baby Wolves.

The contest was considerably closer than the score indicated. After a rugged scoreless first half the Hope Kittens came back to roll up 28 points while holding the visitors to 12. The game featured many excellent passes and the better-than-average saw a well played affair.

Carolyn Coffe and Emile Elder were crowned co-queens of the contest.

SMU Is Idle, Army May Take Top Spot

New York, Oct. 27 — (AP) — The country's No. 1 football team, Southern Methodist, will stand on the sidelines and watch the lesser lights scramble for spots in the top ten this week.

Army, which is rated No. 2, could take over the top spot if it scores decisively over Columbia, one of the have nots of the Ivy league. But the Lions — through they probably will go down — are not to be taken lightly.

It will be recalled that in 1947, Lou Little's boys came up with one of the major upsets of the year by whipping the Cadets, 21 to 20.

No. 3, Oklahoma, sporting the longest winning streak in current college circles, — 25 — takes on Iowa State, and this is figured by the odds makers to be a breeze for the powerful Sooners.

From a competitive standpoint, the game of the week will pair a couple of ancient and hallowed Ivy league rivals, Cornell and Princeton in Tigertown. A crowd of 50,000 will be on hand in Palmer stadium when these two unbeaten elvish clash.

Cornell, the defending Ivy league champion, probably will enter the fray a slight favorite even though in this case the Big Red is the defensive outfit and Princeton specializes on pulverizing the opposition.

There are major conference games all over the country but none will have a bearing on the national picture. In the Big Ten, for example, Ohio State, seeking to repeat its conference victory of last year, goes after Iowa at Columbus while Northwestern tackles Wisconsin, which has been beaten but once. Indiana bucks Illinois and Michigan engages Minnesota at Notre Dame, rapidly becoming the forgotten team of college football, goes up against Michigan State in an effort to salvage some prestige.

In the Pacific Coast conference, a couple of Rose bowl aspirants, Stanford and Washington, both of which tasted defeat for the first time last week, clash.

Texas gets its chance to give Rice the lumps in the feature Southwest conference games. Feature of the Southeast conference program will be the Kentucky Georgia Tech game in Atlanta. Kentucky, the nation's fourth ranked team, is rated a heavy favorite.

Wake Forest and Clemson, unbeaten but tied, play the top Southern conference contest. In the Big Seven, Kansas plays Nebraska in the feature.

During the regency of Phillip of Orleans in the 16th Century, a long strip of muslin was adapted for a tie. This was not wrapped around the neck, but it was sewn onto the shirt.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Oct. 27 — (AP) — You don't have to look past the official figures to see why two of tomorrow's top football games deserve that billing. Princeton, leading the Ivy league in total offense and third in the nation goes against Cornell, the league's defensive leader, which is No. 4 nationally.

Princeton, the Big Ten's most effective passing team, meets Illinois, whose pass defense has limited its opposition to the amazing average of two yards per game. Since Wallace Wade started coaching football in 1919, his teams have won 199 games. He goes after 200 when Duke plays Maryland tomorrow. No other active coach can do that. Mid-season survey shows a two-per cent drop in football attendance. But the figures don't include the hard-pressed small schools which are trying to buck big colleges. # Talk Continues on New Rent Control Law

JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Oct. 27 — (P) — A rent control law. There's been a lot of talk of it, and the idea of a shot in the arm this week. President Truman said yesterday he may call congress back— it's due back on Nov. 27— to consider rent controls, among other things.

Earlier this month Senator Frank La Follette, D-Idaho, said he may have to extend the law when it returns in November.

The past Bricker had been of the chief foes of such control. He had fought against them last two times congress extended them.

As far back as September 1945, when the Senate was in session, Kentucky Democrat James H. Thompson, then chairman of the house banking committee—said his group would start hearings on a new rent law as soon as congress returns in November.

Last April Mr. Truman asked congress to keep the controls until June 30, 1951, anyway.

Late in June congress thought otherwise and decided to wipe out the controls — or most of them— sooner than Mr. Truman wanted.

It passed a rent law which went into effect July 1 and said this:

1. All government rent controls would end Dec. 31, 1950 unless—
2. The people of a city or town, by referendum or vote of their governing body, like a city council, voted to keep them until June 30, 1951.

For most of the country, unless congress in the meantime votes to keep them longer, controls will end Dec. 31, 1950.

But since congress voted in June the Korean fighting started. So did this country's defense program, with all that means.

Industries are booming, workers are needed, and in the meantime the government cracked down on new home building by making it harder to buy.

So the situation now is not exactly the same as it was in June. Bricker, for instance, said this on Oct. 6:

"New building and almost caught up with housing needs (in June) but the government cracked down on new building since the defense program started rolling may leave a

Party Divided on Truman Campaign

Washington, Oct. 27 — (P) — His party's high command was reported divided today on whether President Truman should make a political appeal for the election of a Democratic congress on Nov. 7.

William M. Boyle, Jr., Democratic national chairman, says he has urged the President to make at least one frank political speech. Mr. Truman told yesterday's White House news conference he is thinking the matter over.

But if a group of congressional advisers who can't be named have their way, the President will stand on recent speeches he made at San Francisco and before the United Nations. These were classified as non-political but Democratic members of congress generally were reported to feel they improved Mr. Truman's stature and indirectly helped party candidates.

If the President passes up the temptation to make a direct appeal to the voters, some of his advisers are saying that he could outline his views in an expected call for a special session of congress.

The President indicated rather clearly to newsmen he thinks congress' scheduled return Nov. 27 will come too late to accomplish much before the new year.

He said he wants action on excess profits taxes, statehood for Alaska and Hawaii and continuation of rent control. The statehood issue could set off a senate filibuster that would tie up all other legislation.

Mr. Truman didn't mention a couple of highly controversial subjects — revision of the McCarran anti-subversive law and enactment of universal military training — although he previously has made it clear he wants both.

Neither has he had anything to say recently about an expected request or a huge increase in military appropriations. Some sources said this may include a step in proposed foreign military assistance. Congress already has provided $5,222,000,000 for that program this year.

If the president issues a call for an earlier meeting of congress, some of his advisers think he will stress measures to combat inflation. Some high administrative circles are seriously concerned about price advances and the effect they might have on the election.

shortage that will require rent ceilings.

Government rent controls, which started early in the war, have continued until now without a break although with some changes.

In 1946 there were 16,000,000 units under rent control, the peak number.

At this moment there are only about one-half that number — or 8,000,000 units — still under control.

Since July 1, when the present law went into effect, about 184 communities — with a total of about 1,750,000 dwelling units — have voted to continue federal controls for six months.

Since congress may have other jobs in its lap, when it returns in November, it will have to work fast if it's going to continue the federal controls which otherwise end Dec. 31.

HE CAME TO KILL

by ADELINE McELFRESH

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Aunt Maggie, a spinster, is murdered after she proposes a new will, cutting off her nephew, Peter, and leaving the bulk of the estate to another nephew, Roger, father of her youngest son, John. There is an attempt to cast suspicion on Leeana, but she is cleared. The murderer is a man named Leeana, who is a member of a secret society. The story is a mystery novel.

"You're bungling this thing pretty badly," Peter finally said angrily. "But then I guess I can't expect the efficiency of a district attorney in a country sheriff's office. Will you permit me to call in a private investigator?"

"I won't stop you," Purdy promised.

"Well, I will!" Miss Agatha was on her feet, rocking back and forth like a sparrow clinging to a twig against a buffeting winter wind. "My sister was afraid of you, Peter, and I will not have a private detective hired by you in this house! I am the only honest-to-God Thorne left and—"

"Oh, shut up, Aunt Agatha," Peter groaned. "For the love of Pete!"

MISS AGGIE'S outburst had ripped his Harvard accent to shreds; he sounded almost human. Leeana could feel sorry for him then, could even like him, but when he shrugged back into what she mentally called his holier-than-thou cloak he again became a potential murderer. Or was it any longer potential? Shudderingly, Leeana wondered.

The remainder of the night would be long. Leeana was glad when the sheriff announced his intention of leaving Mart Preston on guard, but she wondered what good one man would be if—

If what? she asked herself. If Peter decided to kill again? She waited until he had gone into the hall after Purdy before she stirred from her chair.

Sandra was waiting at the door. "I-I couldn't go with the others, Leeana," she whispered. "I'm afraid of Jasper! May I stay in with you?"

Quick sympathy stabbed at the dislike between them. Leeana nodded.

"Of course, Sandra," she said, and added: "If you're not afraid of me any more."

"You're a dear," Sandra said warmly. "After all I've—Miss Maggie's, I think. I found it a while ago, under his pillow."

Government to Stop Flow of Key Minerals

Washington, Oct. 27 — (P) — To speed the making of munitions, the government planning to stem part of the immense flow of aluminum, copper and nickel now going into civilian products.

William H. Harrison, administrator of the national production authority, (NPA) told manufacturers yesterday that a "tentative plan" under consideration calls for a cut of 20 to 30 per cent in the non-military use of the three critical metals.

He didn't say when the plan might be put into effect.

Harrison also served notice that another important metal, cobalt, is so scarce that it may be removed from non-defense use altogether. Cobalt, similar to nickel, is used as a steel alloy and in electro-magnets.

It was not clear just how heavily the proposed metals controls would affect the output of television sets, refrigerators, washing machines, automobiles, bicycles, toys, and other articles which contain aluminum, copper, nickel or cobalt.

It will depend in part on the extent to which a manufacturer can adopt substitutes for those metals.

The NPA said that the cutback program would apply to the metals only in their "primary forms." Each manufacturer using aluminum, copper, or nickel would have his supply reduced by a certain percentage below his average consumption during some particular previous period not yet determined.

But each manufacturer could still decide what products to make. And buyers of those products would not be limited to any percentage of their previous purchases.

The NPA said Harrison outlined the tentative plan yesterday before a group of radio and television producers and repeated the performance before manufacturers of consumer durable goods (such as washing machines and refrigerators).

From all reports, most of the industry men apparently were not surprised at the news.

The NPA has been really rolling this week in its program to change the country's industry to a semi-war basis.

Last midnight its ban on new construction of amusement places went into effect on about 14 hours' official notice. That ban brought from the Associated General Contractors of America, Inc., a protest that it is "far more drastic in effect than anything applied during World War II."

Two Months
May See Army for Europe

Washington, Oct. 27 — (P) — The combined military force for defense of Western Europe may be a going concern, headed by an American as supreme commander, within the next two months.

The military committee of the North Atlantic treaty organization last night completed a set of recommendations to be handed to the defense ministers of the 12 treaty powers when they meet here Saturday.

The blueprint prepared by the chiefs of staff comprising the military committee provided: creation of an integrated force for the collective defense of all the North Atlantic treaty area (both Europe and the Western Hemisphere group of Canada and the United States); and integrated force for protection of the European area; the establishment of a supreme headquarters for the European force; the appointment of a supreme commander.

There were broad hints that the nucleus of the European force, to be given a supreme commander, would be functioning by January.

Neither the official communiqué nor an American spokesman who discussed it gave any hint on two points of major interest — the size of the collective force and its components or the nationality of the supreme commander.

Nevertheless, most speculation centered on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of Allied forces in Western Europe in World War II. Those who guessed it would be Eisenhower pointed significantly to a scheduled meeting of the general with President Truman on Saturday.

The questions of a supreme commander and the forces to be commanded were left to the Lillian Vaughn, and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKelney.

Act 1, Deals
With State
Stock Law

(The following is the second of a series of four articles explaining initiated acts and amendments to be voted on in the Nov. 7 general election.)

Proposed Initiated Act No. 1 — the so called stock law act — will be on the ballot at the November 7 general election.

This act was proposed by petition of the people and the ballot title reads as follows:

"An act to make it unlawful for owners of livestock to permit the same to run at large along or on any public highway in the state of Arkansas and providing penalty therefor."

Section 1 of proposed Initiated Act No. 1 declares that after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for owners of cattle, horses, mules, hogs, sheep or goats to allow them to run at large along or on any public highway in the State of Arkansas.

Section 2 provides that any person or persons found guilty of violation of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $50 for the first offense, and any subsequent violations shall be subject to a fine of not less than $50.

Section 3 makes it the duty of any qualified officer to make arrests for violations and vests authority in any court qualified to try misdemeanors to have jurisdiction in matters of violations of this act.

Proposed Initiated Act No. 1 was sponsored by the members of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Arkansas, who were active in securing petitions to place this act on the November 7 election ballot.

Farmers, especially those owning cattle, and livestock interests in Arkansas have formed an organization to oppose the passage of Initiated Act No. 1, claiming it would work a hardship on them to have to keep their livestock fenced in.

Benton Surplus

Little Rock, Oct. 26 — (P) — The state comptroller's office reported today that Benton county ended the year 1949 with a surplus of $68,825.

The audit of county records shows that operating expense of county offices was $45,510 and that the county has encumbrances of $83,472 against future revenues.
